1. Time intentionally spent with family is a good thing.
2. One can buy prescription drugs in Mexico without a prescription.
3. Selling gold by the inch is still very popular.

7. Reading about the Pacific Theatre of World War II while traveling to and from Hawaii makes it very real.
8. I can spend 10 days without the internet and survive.
9. Two weeks on a rocking ship lead to 3-5 days of continued rocking after returning to land.
10. It is possible to keep a commitment of eating one small meal a day on a cruise.
11. Early morning coffee is a gift.
12. Not every new beer tastes good.
13. It is possible to watch the Super Bowl on a cruise ship.
14. I am not in control of the weather.

DEACON’S REFLECTIONS

My sister’s mom is dying. When we adopted a 4 year old girl, we knew next to nothing about her history. They said that her disabilities were possibly inherited from her mom. Maybe her exuberant laugh and joy of life were, too. Growing up, I was protective of my little sister when other kids stared or picked on her because of her speech or behavior or anything about her that they saw as being beneath them. It hurt, but we knew the truth: we gave her a home and she gave us love.

In her late 20’s, my sister started asking about her birth mom. Our mother made inquiries and through a long process that almost didn’t happen, my sister and her mom were reunited. I was there and will never forget it. They knew each other instantly; they have the same smile, same laugh, eyes and mannerisms. We met one of my sister’s birth-siblings, learned of others, and exchanged photos and stories. Two families began the process of closing the gap of so many years and becoming one.

Birthdays, picnics, and cheering on our mutual Special Olympian all helped to make up for lost time. I got to know my sister’s mom on a different level the day I recognized her and her friend among the guests at a community meal where I serve downtown. She became a semi-regular and always greeted me with a hug, asking how her daughter was. I’d send her home with extra food.

I can’t imagine what it was like wondering about her daughter all those years, but I witness the joy she and my sister feel each time they’re together. She does have some disabilities but in the grand scheme of things, they are as nothing. She loves her daughter, my sister. For that, I thank her.

Anne

ECW Nut Sale Final Results 2018

Another successful sale is in the ECW books netting us $625.75. The success is attributed to all of you who purchased nuts for whatever reason. We do know that self-indulgence ranks high on the list.

Kudos to all the people involved with repackaging the nuts and Sunday Sales. We couldn't have done it without you.

It was a large plus that the cost of the nuts enabled us to keep the price the same as it was last year. We'll be in touch in the fall for the next sale.

Thanks to you all,
Mary Ann and Jeanne
